Psalm 46:2-3

As we move into the final months of this very troubling year there is a need to prepare ourselves for anything. Psalm 46 will be our guide. This psalm is one of 10 [possibly 11] psalms written by a group of Levites called the "Sons of Korah". Their ancient ancestor is mentioned in Numbers 16 as the Levitical leader of a revolt against Moses.

Psalm 46:2-3

In Numbers 16, Korah, Moses' cousin leads a rebellion of 250 Levites and several important families in Israel. By the end of the chapter Korah and the tribal leaders are swallowed by a sudden fissure in the earth and fire from God consumes the 250 Levites. In Numbers 26:11 we are told that the sons of Korah were not destroyed with their father.

though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea;
3 Though its waters roar and be troubled, Though the mountains shake with its swelling. Selah

San Andreas Fault in the Carrizo Plain, northwest of Los Angeles

All over our world there are fault lines where plates of the earth's surface are colliding. The plates are always moving and pressing against one another. When there is a sudden lurch we call it an earthquake. When the molten core of earth intrudes up through these plates we have a volcano. When the earth shakes near the sea or under it causes a tide called tsunami. These are the images that the writers of Psalm 46 paint.
